

ADVANCE PRAISE

“Free and fair elections are the cornerstone of our democracy, but we are seeing how disinformation can be used to deceive voters and undermine trust in the electoral process. Elaine Kamarck and Darrell West offer an important and critical analysis about what is at stake for Americans across the political spectrum as disinformation spreads and evolves, especially with emerging technologies like artificial intelligence, underscoring the urgent need to take action.” U.S. Senator Amy Klobuchar

“Citizens who want to know how to get at the truth should read this timely and important book. It describes the new landscape of disinformation in America today across a wide range of issues – from climate change to public health and elections, to race and to war. It explains where disinformation comes from, the networks that spread it and the large sums of money that are made from pushing it. Nothing is more important in this day and age than citizens armed with the ability to tell truth from fiction.” Vice President Al Gore

“Elaine C. Kamarck and Darrell M. West have written an essential citizen’s guide to disinformation, just when it is most needed: going into an election that may well determine the future of American democracy. Perhaps what is most valuable about Lies That Kill is its deep understanding of the motives and organizational roots of disinformation. Its production often involved complex organizational networks fueled by greed. This is a timely and important book.” Steven Livingston, George Washington University
